This real world example shows the states that an insurance policy can be in. Note that the transitions are caused by use cases here, so in this example the use case model and the state machine must be consistent to each other.